Enhancing ME&L Coordination Between National and County Governments

Gituro Wainaina

Perspective

Monitoring and Evaluation:

- ❖ Often is undertaken at project level

- ❖ Forms a critical component in management decision making

- ❖ Has been silo managed – limited coordinated system for data and information sharing on impact of investments

Strategies

1. Develop an Integrated Knowledge Management System (IKMS)
2. Develop a standard M&E tool
3. Collect, collate, disaggregate, analyze, publish and disseminate periodic M&E reports

4. Leverage on current and future innovations in ICT such as e-government, Huduma Centres, county information and resource centres, and integrated population registration systems

Conclusion

- ❖ ME&L should be a management decision tool for both national government and county governments

- ❖ Implementation of a coordinated IKMS will ensure improved delivery of projects and programs objectives and expected results; accountability in utilization of resources; and enhanced access to evidence-based data and information

- ❖ Communities should be involved in whole process of ME&L
